PHILADELPHIA:

PRINTED BY JOHN BLOREN, No. 83 CHESTNUT ST.
FOR THE EDITOR.

1799.

A D D R E S S .

THE Editor is too sensible of the Utility of a Directory to apologise for this. He is, however, fully aware of the necessity of some Apology for the incomplete manner in which it makes its first appearance before the Public.

It was his design, to present the inhabitants of Philadelphia and its vicinity, not only with a complete list of the inhabitants, but also with a register of all the most useful information relative to Government, Commerce, the Police, and Law.

If, in a hasty endeavour to execute this design, he has rendered the work less perfect than he wished, he has only to assure his friends, that in future very special attention will be paid to render it in all the preceding respects complete.

In order to forward the present publication, the Editor was induced to put it to press when a selection was made of the most mercantile part of the city and liberties, which has occasioned a larger supplement than would otherwise have been necessary; but he trusts that most names not found in the body of the work, will be found in the annexed supplement.

It is intended to publish this work annually, in December or January; and any information for the improvement and correction thereof, will be thankfully received at the office of the Weekly Magazine, No. 90, South Third-street.

Many useful articles, which the Editor has received, have been omitted to expedite the publication, but which will in future be duly attended to.
