Iron Chest

MANUFACTORY.

JOHN SCOTT,

No. 1, Lodge St.—Warehouse, No. 88, Dock St.
Near the Pennsylvania Bank.

The highest recommendations that could be given have been published confirming the Salamandrine quality of

SCOTT'S IRON CHESTS,

In fact, Nebuchednezzar's furnace only, it seems, would scorch the bank notes and valuable parchments enclosed in these chests.

WARRANTED—As will be perceived from the following certificates, from merchants of the first respectability:

This is to certify, that the Iron Chest of 2ft. 5in. high and 18in. wide which we now deliver to Mr. John Scott, of Philadelphia, (and who, we have been credibly informed, made it,) was in our counting house during the destructive fire, 15th July last, on Smith's Wharf in this city; it contained all our important books, and several valuable papers, and also, several bank notes, all of which were taken out in a safe condition, after being in the midst of the flames about two hours; the Chest was heated RED HOT, as its appearance still indicates.
Baltimore, 24th October, 1832.

WM. CARSON & CO.

We have known Messrs. Wm. Carson & Co. Lumber and Coal merchants, for many years, and bear full testimony to their respectability and integrity.

Wilson & Peterkin,	John W. Brown,	R. Lemmon & Co.
John G. Chappell,	Wm. Crawford, jr.	John Boggs & Co.
Isaiah Mankin,	H: Thompson & Son,	James Corner & Son,
James Thompson,	Lawson & Brice,	Harrison & Sterrett.

I have had one of Mr. John Scott's Iron Fire Proof Chests in my counting house for the last year, and during that time, have had my counting house broken open twice, and robbed of what could be obtained; but my books, papers, &c. entirely preserved from depredation; having been kept in the Chest. At one time in particular, every exertion was made to break it open, but without success. It was also rolled to the door, for the purpose of taking it off, but the attempt was unsuccessful.

THOMAS RIDGELY,

Nov. 27, 1834.

Lumber Merchant.

Orders received and sent to any part of the United States, by the manufacturer, JOHN SCOTT, No. 1, Lodge Street, Philadelphia—

Balsam of Lungwort.

Prepared at the Apothecaries' Hall, LONDON,

(From the Pulmonaria Gallicia, or Golden Lungwort,) and extensively employed by many eminent Physicians, in the treatment of

ASTHMA, COUGHS, COLDS, AND LUNG COMPLAINTS.

A long dissertation on the virtues and healing effects of this elegant preparation would savour too much of the common quackery of the day; it is therefore deemed sufficient to state, that it has proved of singular efficacy in relieving the troublesome and alarming symptoms of ASTHMA, COUGHS, SHORTNESS OF BREATH, and other Complaints of the Chest, so usual in the Spring and Autumn, and which if not immediately attended to, will too often, induce incurable disease of the Lungs.

This valuable medicine is sold at 50 cents per bottle, by the general agent, at No. 122 Walnut street, two doors below Fifth, and by most of the Druggists.

THOMAS G. CHASE.

J. R. SMITH,

Professor of the Elementary Principles in the art of
DRAWING, PAINTING AND PERSPECTIVE,
Adapted to the various branches of the Fine Arts,

Respectfully informs the public generally, that he teaches on principles long approved by the best masters in Europe, and which have been flatteringly confirmed by the approval of the principal artists in the United States, attached to his Juvenile Drawing Book, System of Perspective; Compendium of Anatomy; and Key to the Art of Drawing.

He gives lessons twice a week, which thirty years experience has proved to be sufficient for obtaining principles as fast as intervening practice can fix them in the mind, and for which the above publications are peculiarly adapted.

Perspective Illustrations,

SCIENCE EXPLAINED.

IN A COURSE OF FIVE LECTURES, BY MEANS OF AN APPARATUS.

MR. SMITH

Having constructed a machine, or apparatus for the purpose of teaching the principle and practice of perspective, on a plan that carries conviction to the understanding, by ocular demonstration, gives lectures thereon; eliciting the whole phenomena of this delightful, but hitherto much neglected science: in a manner adapted to the comprehension of those not acquainted with mathematics.

From the simplicity of its operations, it is clearly understood on inspection; and while it becomes of real utility to the painter and artizan, it furnishes an inexhaustible source of mental gratification to amateurs, ladies and gentlemen, desirous of gracing their liberal education: as such the author respectfully solicits the patronage of all friends to the diffusion of useful knowledge.

The various letters of approbation from professional gentlemen and others who have attended these lectures are in pamphlet form with the Prospectus of the Drawing Academy for applicants; their bulk precluding their admission in this advertisement.

Those letters exhibit satisfactory evidence that this system is the shortest, truest, and easiest heretofore devised for becoming practical, / useful to every branch of the profession, as well as amateur ladies and gentlemen.

Terms and particulars on application at the Drawing Academy.

LENGTH OF SQUARES. CITY COUNCILS.

CITY OF PHILADELPHIA.

LENGTH OF THE SQUARES IN THE CITY PLOT.

An account has lately been published in different papers respecting the size of the squares, which give an incorrect result—stating the distance from Delaware to Schuylkill at 4,893 feet. We therefore publish the following statement, which we believe to be more nearly correct. The distance on Cedar st. is somewhat greater than on High street.

LENGTH OF SQUARES EAST AND WEST.

Beginning at Schuylkill low water mark on Cedar Street.

NB. Since the difference of latitude between Baltimore and Washington is only about 24 miles the difference between the times of rising and setting of the Sun and Moon will be about one-third of the difference between that of Philadelphia and that of Washington.

EASTERN DISTRICT OF PENNSYLVANIA, to wit:

BE IT REMEMBERED, that on the nineteenth day of September, in the fifty-first year of the independence of the United States of America, A. D. 1837, ROBERT DESILVER, of the said district, hath deposited in this office the title of a book, the right whereof he claims as proprietor, in the words following, to wit:

"The United States Almanac, comprising Calculations for the Latitudes and Meridians of the Northern, Southern, and Western States, with a variety of public information and interesting Masonic matter; together with a correct list of the Army and Navy of the United States. Members of Congress, Courts, &c. Selected in order to be extensively useful throughout the Country, to Travellers and Residents." Calculated by Seth Smith.

In conformity to the act of the congress of the United States, intituled "An act for the encouragement of learning, by securing the copies of maps, charts, and books, to the authors and proprietors of such copies, during the times therein mentioned."—And also to the act, entitled, "An act supplementary to an act, entitled, "An act for the encouragement of learning, by securing the copies of maps, charts, and books, to the authors and proprietors of such copies during the times therein mentioned," and extending the benefits thereof to the arts of designing, engraving, and teaching historical and other prints."

PROPER RULES TO BE OBSERVED IN MARKETING, FOR ALL KINDS OF PROVISIONS.

As it is very interesting to the house-keeper, cook, or any other person that goes to market, if not well acquainted with the nature of it, to have ample instructions, it is proper to give the best in our power; as very often by buying a thing that is not prime and good, there are complaints against the dressing or sauce, and therefore it would be well for a person to read this part of marketing, which is given before they go to buy; by that means it may prevent them from making mistakes, and give greater satisfaction to their employers and themselves.

BEEF.—In choosing of ox beef, observe that if the meat is young, it will have a fine smooth open grain of a pleasing carnation red, and when you pinch it, will feel tender; the fat must be rather white than yellow, and the suet white and firm; if it is very yellow, it has been fed with oil cakes, or it is not good meat; if it feels rough and spongy, and nips hard, it is old, or nearly so. Heifer, or young cow beef, is close grained, and the fat whiter than the ox, but the lean has not so bright a red; if you can see the udder, try if there is any milk, or the test open, if not, you are sure it is young; bull beef has still a closer grain, and the lean of a deep red, the fat is skinny and hard, and has a rank smell; be sure to mind there are no bruises, if there is, do not buy it, for if you salt it, it will be sure to stink.

The different pieces in a bullock, contain the head, tongue, and palate, the entrails are the kidney, skirts, and tripe; there is the double, the roll, and the reed tripe, the heart, liver, and lights.

The fore-quarter contains the haunch, which includes the clod, marrow-bone, shin and the sticking pieces, that is the neck end; the next is the leg of mutton piece, which has part of the blade-bone in, then the chuck, the brisket, the fore-rib, and middle or chuck-rib.

The hind-quarter contains the surloin and rump, the thin and

GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Messrs. Editors.—As any mention of the most trilling circumstances in the life of this great man is received by the world with avidity, perhaps your readers will be pleased with the following.

One pleasant evening in the month of June, in the year 17—, a man was observed entering the border of a wood, near the Hudson river, his appearance that of a person above the common rank. The inhabitants of a country village would have dignified him with the title of squire, and from his manner, have pronounced him proud: but those more accustomed to society, would inform you, there was something like a military air about him. His horse panted as if it had been hard pushed for some miles, yet from the owner's frequent stops to caress the patient animal, he could not be charged with want of humanity; but seemed to be actuated by some urgent necessity. The rider's forsaking a good road for the by-path leading through the woods, indicated a desire to avoid the gaze of other travellers. He had not left the house where he inquired the direction of the above-mentioned path, more than two hours, before the quietude of the place was broken by the noise of distant thunder. He was soon after obliged to dismount, travelling becoming dangerous, as darkness concealed surrounding objects, except when the lightning's terrific flash afforded a momentary view of his situation. A peal, louder and of longer duration than any of the preceding, which now burst over his head, seemed as if it would rend the woods asunder, was quickly followed by a heavy fall of rain, which penetrated the clothing of the stranger ere he could obtain the shelter of a large oak which stood at a little distance.

Almost exhausted with the labors of the day, he was about making such disposition of the saddle and his own coat, as would admit him to pass the night with what comfort circumstances would admit, when he espied a light glimmering through the trees. Animated with the hope of better lodgings, he determined to proceed. The way, which was somewhat steep, became attended with more obstacles the farther he advanced; the soil being composed of clay, which the rain had rendered so soft that his feet slipped at every step. By the utmost perseverance, this difficulty was finally overcome without any accident, and he had the pleasure of finding himself in front of a decent looking farm house. The watch-dog began barking, which brought the owner of the mansion to the door.

"Who is there?" said he.
 "A friend, who has lost his way, and is in search of a place of shelter," was the answer.
 "Come in sir," added the first speaker, "and whatever my house will afford, you shall have with welcome."

"I must first provide for the weary companion of my journey," remarked the other.

But the former undertook the task, and after conducting the new-comer into a room where his wife was seated, he led the horse to a well-stored barn, and there provided for him most bountifully. On rejoining the traveller, he observed, "That is a noble animal of yours, sir."

"Yes," was the reply. "and I am sorry that I was obliged to misuse him so, as to make it necessary to give you much trouble with the care of him; but I have yet to thank you for your kindness to both of us."

"I did no more than my duty sir," said the entertainer, "and therefore am entitled to no thanks. But Susan," added he, turning to the hostess, with a half reproachful look, "why have you not given the gentleman something to eat?"

Fear had prevented the good woman from exercising her well known benevolence; for a robbery thick flank, the veiny piece, the ich bone, buttock, mouse buttock, and leg.

MUTTON.—If the mutton is young, the flesh will pinch tender, but if it is old, it will pinch hard, and continue wrinkled, and the fat will be fibrous and clammy; if owe mutton, the flesh is paler than weather, a closer grain, and easily parting; if ram mutton, the grain is closer, and the lean of a darker red, and the fat spongy; if there is a rot, the lean will be palish, and the fat a faint whitish color, inclining to yellow, and if you squeeze it hard, some drops of water will stand up like sweat; the best method is to examine the liver; if it is clear from knots, smooth, and sound, you are sure the meat is good. Mutton, except in very hot weather, is kept four or five days before it is dressed, and most people choose the short shanked mutton. The different joints in a sheep are, the head and pluck, which includes the liver, lights, heart, melt, and, sweet-breads. The fore-quarter contains the shoulder, neck, and breast. The hind-quarter, the leg and loin, though two loins together make a chine; the two necks and part of the shoulder cut on them are the saddle, which are two fine joints, if the mutton is small and fat.

LAMB.—If the eye is bright and plump in the head, it is fresh, but if sunk and wrinkled and the head looks dry, it is stale. Mind if the vein in the neck looks of a fine azure blue, if so, it is fresh; if it is green or yellow, and the meat looks dry, it is stale; in the hind-quarter if there is a faint smell and feels clammy, and the nuckle is limber, it is not fresh. House lamb is in season from the first of September till July; grass lamb from Easter to October. The lamb contains the head and pluck, that is the liver, lights, heart, nut, and melt, and the fry, which consists of the sweet-bread, stones, skirts, with a little of the liver; the shoulder, neck, and breast together is the fore-quarter, the leg and lion the hind. In choosing lamb, be sure to mind it is very white; if it looks brown, it will not dress half so well; be sure to buy the ewe leg for boil-had been committed by a lawless band of depredators, but a few days before, and as report stated that the ruffians were all well dressed, her imagination suggested that this man might be one of them.

At her husband's remonstrance, she now readily engaged in repairing her error, by preparing a plentiful repast. During the meal there was much interesting conversation among the three. As soon as the worthy countryman perceived that his guest had satisfied his appetite, he informed him, that it was now the hour at which the family usually performed their evening devotions, inviting him at the same time to be present. The invitation was accepted in these words.

"It would afford me the greatest pleasure to commune with my heavenly Preserver, after the events of the day; such exercises prepare us for the repose which we seek in sleep."

The host now reached his Bible from the shelf, and after reading a chapter and singing, concluded the whole with a fervent prayer; then lighting a pine-knot, conducted the person he had entertained, to his chamber, wished him a good night's rest, and retired to the adjoining apartment.

"John," whispered the woman, "that is a good gentleman, and not one of the highwaymen, as I supposed."

"Yes, Susan," said he, "I like him better for thinking of his God, than for all his kind inquiries after our welfare. I wish our Peter had been home from the army, if it was only to hear this good man talk; I am sure Washington himself could not say more for his country, nor give a better history of the hardships endured by our brave soldiers."

"Who knows now," inquired his wife, "but it may be he himself, after all, my dear, for they do say, he travels just so, all alone, sometimes. Hark! what's that?"

The sound of a voice came from the chamber of their guest, who was now engaged in his private religious worship. After thanking the Creator for his many mercies, and asking a blessing on the inhabitants of the house, he continued, "and now, Almighty Father, if it is thy holy will, that we shall obtain a place and a name among the nations of the earth, grant that we may be enabled to show our gratitude for thy goodness, by our endeavors to fear and obey thee. Bless us with wisdom in our councils, success in battle, and let all our victories be tempered with humanity. Endow also our enemies with enlightened minds, that they may become sensible of their injustice, and willing to restore our liberty and peace. Grant the petition of thy servant for the sake of him whom thou hast called thy beloved son; nevertheless, not my will, but thine be done. Amen."

The next morning, the traveller, declining the pressing solicitations to breakfast with his host, declared it was necessary for him to cross the river immediately; at the same time offering a part of his purse, as a compensation for the attention he had received, which was refused.

"Well sir," said he, "since you will not permit me to recompense you for your trouble, it is but just that I should inform you on whom you have conferred so many obligations, and also add to them by requesting your assistance in crossing the river. I had been out yesterday endeavoring to obtain some information respecting our enemy, and being alone, ventured too far from the camp: on my return I was surprised by a foraging party, and only escaped by my knowledge of the roads and the fleetness of my horse. My name is George Washington."

Surprise kept the listener silent for a moment, then, after unsuccessfully repeating the invitation to partake of some refreshment, he hastened to call two negroes, with whose assistance he placed the horse on a small raft of timber that was lying in the ing, as the udder makes it look handsomer than the ram lamb.

VEAL.—In the choice of veal be sure to choose it fat and white, and observe when it is cut that the juice follows the knife, then you may be sure that it is good meat and will dress well; if it is husky and dry, it will eat so. The flesh of a cow-calf is whiter than bull, but the lean is not so firm; the fillet of the former is preferred on account of the udder. If the bloody vein in the shoulder looks blue or red, and when you squeeze it, bleeds freely, it is fresh; but if it looks black or yellow, and the knuckle withered and dry, it is stale. The breast and neck taints first at the upper end, which you will know by its looking yellow or green: rub your fingers on, and if it smells musty, don't buy it; but if it looks red or bluish, and has a good smell, it is fresh; the leg is known by its stiffness in the knuckle joint; if limber, and the flesh feels clammy, with yellow or green specks on, it is stale; if you smell under the fat or udder, it will smell of an agreeable flavor if fresh, if stale it will smell musty; the loin taints first under the kidney, and if it comes out clean and smells well, it is fresh; if slimy and smells musty, it is stale. Be sure to buy the close side if you can, as it dresses better and eats mellow than the open side. If the head is fresh, the eyes will be plump, and the veins in the neck end will look red; if otherwise, it is stale. The pieces in a calf, are the head and inwards, which contains the heart, liver, lights, nut, and melt; the skirts, the throat, and sweet bread, and the windpipe, or heart sweet-bread, which is the best; the fore-quarter is the shoulder, neck, and breast; the hind quarter is the leg, which contains the fillet, knuckle, and loin.

PORK.—You must be particularly careful in the choice of pork, for when it is measy it is very dangerous to be eaten. You will know when it is measy by the following maxims; take and squeeze the lean between your hands, and if it is measy there will appear little specks like fishes' eyes, and the inside of the throat, the liver and lights, will be full of them, and the fat a very pale white; if young and good, the lean will break on pinching it river, near the door, and soon conveyed the general to the opposite side, where he left him to pursue his way to the camp, wishing him a safe and prosperous journey. On his return to the house, he found that, while he was engaged in making preparations for conveying the horse across the river, his illustrious visitor had persuaded his wife to accept a token of remembrance, which the family are proud of exhibiting to this day.

The above is only one of the many hazards encountered by this truly great patriot for the purpose of transmitting to posterity the treasures we now enjoy. Let us acknowledge the benefits received, by our endeavors to preserve them in their purity; and by keeping in remembrance the Great Source whence these blessings flow, may we be enabled to render our names worthy of being enrolled with that of the father of his country.

THE BAG OF GOLD.

The following well told story, by the poet Rogers, will be read with interest even by those who have seen it before. We should deem it susceptible of a fine effect from the stage.

"There lived, in the fourteenth century, near Bologna, a widow lady of the Lambertini family, called Madonna Lucrezia, who, in a revolution of the state, had known the bitterness of poverty, and had even begged her bread; kneeling day after day, like a statue, at the gate of the cathedral—her rosary in her left hand, and her right held out for charity—her long black veil concealing a face that had once adorned a court and had received the homage of as many sonnets as Petrarch has written on Laura.

"But fortune had at last relented; a legacy from a distant relation had come to her relief; and she was now the mistress of a small inn at the foot of the Appennines, where she entertained as well as she could, and where those only stopped who were contented with a little. The house was still standing when in my youth I passed that way; though the sign of the White Cross, the Cross of the Hospitalers, was no longer to be seen over the door—a sign which she had taken, if we may believe the tradition there, in honor of a maternal uncle, a grand-master of that order, whose achievements in Palestine, she would sometimes relate. A mountain stream ran through the garden; and at no great distance, where the road turned on its way to Bologna, stood a little chapel, in which a lamp was always burning before a picture of the Virgin—a picture of great antiquity, the work of some Greek artist.

* Here she was dwelling, respected by all who know her, when an event took place which threw her into the deepest affliction. It was at noon-day, in September, that three foot travellers arrived, and, seating themselves on a bench under her vine-trellis, were supplied with a flagon of Alatico by a lovely girl, her only child, the image of her former self. The eldest spoke like a Venetian, and his beard was short and pointed after the fashion of Venice. In his demeanor he affected great courtesy, but his look inspired little confidence; for when he smiled, which he did continually, it was with his lips only, not with his eyes; and they were always turned from yours. His companions were bluff and frank in their manner, and on their tongues were many a soldier's oath. In their hats they wore a medal, such as in that age was often distributed in war; and they were evidently subalterns in one of those free bands which were always ready to serve in a quarrel, if a service it could be called, where a battle was little more than a mockery; and the slain, as on an opera stage, were up and fighting to-morrow. Overcome with the heat, they threw aside their cloaks; and, with their gloves tucked under their belts, continued for sometime in earnest conversation.

the skin very thin, and will dent by nipping it with your finger and thumb; the fat and lean of a fine white like veal, and soft as velvet. If the lean is red and tough, and the fat flabby and spongy, and feels rough, it is old. If off a young boar, or a hog altered at its full growth, the lean will be hard, tough, red, and of a rank ruminish smell. If the meat is cool, stiff, and smooth, it is fresh; if clammy or slimy, it is stale. Be sure to run your finger under the twist of the leg; if that part of it is fresh, you may be assured that the rest is so, as it gets musty there soonest. The pieces in a porker are the head and inwards, which is the heart, liver, lights, crow, kidneys, and skirt; the maw and guts, which are either made clatterlings, or cloused for hogs' puddings. The fore quarter is the fore loin and spring. The hind quarter is the leg and hind-loin, or cut thus. cut a sparerib off the fore quarter and the hand; cut the leg like a ham; then cut off the belly piece to salt, and with a chopper cut it about an inch from the chine; cut it all through and take off the rind; the chine bone makes a fine griskin, and the other the sweet bone. A bacon hog is cut different for making hams and bacon; you can cut bald or spareribs, chines, and griskins, and plenty of flake, for hogs lard; the haslet is very good roasted, and the feet and ears dressed several ways. Pork is in season from the first of September till May.

VENISON—As venison is the dearest article that is bought of flesh kind, so you should be more circumspect in the choice of it; the haunch is undoubtedly the finest. Run a skewer under the bone, and if it smells sweet, it is good; but be sure that the thick part or cushion does not look green, if it does, it is struck and stinks all through; the inside of the shoulder will look red if fresh, if stale, it will look black and green; the neck part stinks first on the side, and looks very green and clammy; run a skewer into the thick part of the neck, and if it smells sweet, the neck is so; be sure choose it with the fat white and very thick on the haunch and neck; if you have occasion to keep it any length of

"At length they rose to go; and the Venetian thus addressed their hostess:—'Excellent lady, may we leave under your roof, for a day or two, this bag of gold?'

"You may," she replied gaily. "But remember, we fasten only with a latch. Bars and bolts we have none in our village; and, if we had, where would be your security?"

"In your word, lady."

"But what if I died to-night? where would it be then?" said she, laughingly. "The money would go to the church, for none could claim it."

"Perhaps you will favor us with an acknowledgment."

"If you will write it."

"An acknowledgment was written accordingly, and she signed it before Master Bartolo, the village-physician, who had just called by chance to learn the news of the day; the gold to be delivered when applied for, but not to be delivered (these were the words) not to one, nor two, but to three; words wisely introduced by those to whom it belonged, knowing what they knew of each other. The gold they had just released from a miser's chest in Perugia; and they were now on a scent that promised more.

"They and their shadows were no sooner departed than the Venetian returned, saying, 'give me leave to set my seal on the bag, as the others have done?' and she placed it on a table before him. But in that moment she was called away to receive a cavalier, who had just dismounted from his horse; and when she came back, it was gone. The temptation had proved irresistible; and the man and the money have vanished together.

"Wretched woman that I am!" she cried, as in an agony of grief she fell on her daughter's neck; "what will become of us? Are we again to be cast out into the world? Unhappy child, would that thou hadst never been born!" And all day long she lamented; but her tears availed her little. The others were not slow in returning to claim their due; and there were no tidings of the thief; he had fled far away with his plunder. A process against her was instantly begun in Bologna; and what defence could she make—how release herself from the obligation of the bond? Wilfully or in negligence she had parted with it to one, when she should have kept it for all; and inevitable ruin awaited her!

"Go, Gianetta," said she to her daughter, "take this veil which your mother has worn and wept under so often, and implore the councillor Calderino, to plead for us on the day of trial. He is generous and will listen to the unfortunate. But, if he will not, go from door to door; Mondaldi cannot refuse us. Make haste, my child; but remember the chapel as you pass by it. Nothing prospers without prayer."

"Alas! she went, but in vain. These were retained against them; those demanded more than they had to give; and all bade them despair. What was to be done? No advocate, and the cause to come on to-morrow!

"Now Gianetta had a lover; and he was a student of the law—a young man of great promise, Lorenzo Merte's. He had studied long and diligently, under the learned lawyer, Giovanni Andrews; who, though little of stature, was great in renown, and by his contemporaries was called the arch-doctor, the rabbi of doctors, the light of the world. Under him he had studied, sitting on the same bench with Petrarch; and also under his daughter, Novella, who would often lecture to the scholars when her father was otherwise engaged, placing herself behind a small curtain, lest her beauty should divert their thoughts; a precaution, in this instance at least, unnecessary, Lorenzo having lost his heart to another.

"To him she flies in her necessity; but of what assistance can he be? He has just taken his place at the bar, but he has never spoken; and how stand time, and have an ice-well, wipe it dry with a cloth, and pepper the inside well; put a sheet of paper all over it, and put it on the ice, and when it comes out hang it in the air two or three hours to take off the damp. If you should have it hanging in the air, and you perceive it is likely to lighten, be sure to carry it into a cellar where no lightning can get to it, for if it strikes it, it will stink in a few hours; the different parts are the head and umbles, the fry and chine, which is very good to make soup with; the haunch, the shoulder, and the side, which is the neck and breast. Buck venison comes in season about the first of June, and lasts till the middle of September. Doe venison comes in about the middle of October, and lasts till January; likewise the heifer, which is a buck fawn cut while it is young. A buck should never be killed under seven years old, nor above nine.

HAMS are chosen by the softness of the shank and thickness in the cushion; put your trying or penknife under the bone, and if it comes out clean and has a good smell, it is sweet and good, but if it is daubed and has a rank smell, it is tainted and rusty, and be sure not to buy it.

BACON is esteemed the best; if the lean is of a fine red, and sticks close to the bone, and the fat of a clear white, without any yellow streaks, and the rind thin, it is young and good; if any yellowness, or the fat of a faint dusky white, and feels soft, it is rusty, or soon will be so.

TURKIES.—If the cock turkey is young, it will have smooth blank legs with the spur just appearing; if fresh, the eyes will look full and bright, and the velvet of a fine red, and the feet moist and limber. Be careful to observe that the spurs are not cut, or scraped over to deceive you. If the eyes are sunk, and the head looks black, the feet dry and stiff, it is stale. The same rule will hold good for a hen; when old, her legs are rough and red; if with egg, the vent will be soft and open, but if not with egg, the vent will be close and hard.

CAPON.—A true capon, if young, his spurs are short and thick, his legs smooth, the comb large and pale, with a fat vein on each side of his breast; very fat down the back and rump, and a thick up alone, unpractised and unprepared as he is, against an array that would alarm the most experienced?

"Were I as mighty as I am weak," said he, "my fears for you would make me as nothing. But I will be there, Gianetta; and may the friend of the friendless give me strength in that hour! Even now my heart fails me; but, come what will, while I have a loaf to share, you and your mother shall never want. I will bog through the world for you."

"The day arrives, and the court assembles. The claim is stated, and the evidence given. And now the defence is called for—but none is made; not a syllable is uttered; and after a pause and a consultation of some minutes, the judges are proceeding to give judgment, silence having been proclaimed in the court, when Lorenzo arises, and thus addresses them:

"Reverend signors—Young as I am, may I venture to speak before you? I would speak in behalf of one who has none else to help her; and I will not keep you long. Much has been said; much on the sacred nature of the obligation; and we acknowledge it in its full force. Let it be fulfilled, and to the last letter. It is what we solicit, what we require. But to whom is the bag of gold to be delivered? What says the bond? Not to one—not to two—but to the three. Let the three stand forth and claim it!"

"From that day, (for who can doubt the issue?) none were sought, none employed, but the subtle, the eloquent Lorenzo. Wealth followed fame; nor need I say how soon he sat at his marriage-feast, or who sat beside him."

SAGACITY OF AN INDIAN.

A Spaniard, on a journey met with an American Indian in the midst of a desert; they were both an horseback. The Spaniard fearing his horse would not be able to perform the journey, asked the Indian, whose horse was young and vigorous, to make an exchange with him; which he of course refused. The Spaniard sought a cause of quarrel with him, and being well armed, seized easily the horse he wanted, and continued his journey. The American pursued him into the next town, and made his complaint to the judge, the Spaniard was obliged to appear, and produce the horse; he treated the Indian as a cheat, affirmed the horse belonged to him, and that he had reared it from a foal. There were no proofs to the contrary, and the judge, perplexed, was going to send the pleaders out of the court, and dismiss the process; when the Indian cried out;—"The horse is mine and I'll prove it." He immediately stripped off his cloak and threw it over the animal's head. "That man being so confident that he had reared his horse, command him, (said he, addressing the judge,) to tell which of the two eyes is blind."

The Spaniard, in order not to seem to hesitate in the least, answered immediately, "The right eye." The Indian uncovered the horse's head; "he is neither blind (said he) of the right, nor the left eye." The judge convinced by so ingenious and strong a proof, adjudged him the horse, and the affair was decided.

COMPLIMENTS TO THE LADIES.

Quin, the celebrated English comedian, was distinguished for his attachment to the society of females, though the accounts which have been handed down of his rugged habits and propensities may have led the reader to the contrary supposition. Where ladies were present one evening, the subject of conversation was the doctrine of Pythagoras. Quin remained silent. One of the party (remarkable for the whiteness of her neck) asked Quin his opinion—"Do you believe in the transmigration of souls, Mr. Quin?" "Oh yes, madam!" "And pray may I inquire what creature's form you would prefer hereafter to in habit?" "A fly's nudam." "A fly!" "Yes, that I might have the pleasure, at some future day, of resting on your ladyship's neck." There was infinite delicacy in the following:—Being asked by a lady, why it was reported that there was more women in the world than men, he replied, "It is in conformity with the arrangements of nature, madam; we always see more of heaven than earth!"

ASKING A SMALL FAVOR.

A few days since, as one of the eastern steamboats was about leaving the wharf, a passenger was asked to take charge of a letter to a friend in Boston. He did so, very readily, and others having the like favours to ask, applied to him in their turn. In a very accommodating manner he accepted the additional charge, and soon had his pockets filled with letters. Others, emboldened by the readiness with which he undertook these little errands, applied to him to take charge of larger and more weighty articles, such as packages of wedding cake, patterns of the newest fashions, and such like matters, which, with the greatest good nature in the world, were also taken charge of by the accommodating passenger. "Wont you be kind enough," said a gentleman, "just to put this shawl in your pocket, and leave it at Mrs. Such-a-one's, in Providence?" "Shall I trouble you," said another, "to take charge of this pine apple, and hand it to my wife? I promised to send her one, and I wish you would be particular to deliver it into her own hands. I'm sorry to trouble you, but——." He was now interrupted by a wag, who, seeing the disposition to impose upon good nature, bawled out, "Mister, I regret exceedingly to trouble you, but if your pockets are not full, you will oblige me very much by taking charge of a barrel of flour."

nessed an instance in the town of Liverpool. A butcher's boy was driving about twenty fat sheep through the town, but they ran down a street, along which he did not want them to go. He observed a scavenger at work with his broom a little way before them, and called out loudly for him to stop the sheep. The man accordingly did what he could to turn them back, running from side to side, always opposing himself to their passage, and brandishing his broom with great dexterity; but the sheep, much agitated, pressed forward, and at last one of them came right up to the man, who, fearing it was about to jump over his head, whilst he was stooping, grasped the short broomstick in both hands, and held it over his head. He stood for a few seconds in this position, when the sheep made a spring and jumped fairly over him, without touching the broom. The first had no sooner cleared this impediment, than another followed, and another, in quick succession, that the man, perfectly confounded, seemed to lose all recollection, and stood in the same attitude till the whole had jumped over him, not one of them attempting to pass on either side, though the street was quite clear.

A Good Joke.—A teamster lately lost from his wagon a keg of butter, which was found by a man, who carried it half a mile on foot, to the tavern of Mr. H. where he found the owner, who gave him no other compensation than his thanks. Mr. H. the landlord, observed to him that he was well paid—that thank you was worth 25 cents, and thank you kindly worth 37 cents. He (the footman) soon called for a dinner, which was forthwith provided. After finishing his meal, he inquired the price; the answer was 25 cents. He then said, I thank you kindly, and moved off. The landlord immediately called to him—here, stop my friend, and take your change; there is 12 cents, your due—your bill was only 25 cents.

WILD DUCKS.—A wild duck's feet are very small and red, the belly very plump, and if good the fat on the rump is hard and white; if very yellow, it eats strong and fishy; if fresh, the feet are moist and limber, if stale, the feet are dry and stiff, and the body looks black.

Easterlings, pintails, dun birds, and teal, are chosen the same way, only the feet are black.

PHEASANTS.—The cock pheasant is a most beautiful wild bird; and both cock and hen are of a fine flavour; the cock, if young, has short dubbed spurs, but if old, long and very sharp; the hen has none, but most valued; when with egg, the vent is large and open; if the vent is loose and green, they are stale. As this is game by act of parliament, they are not allowed to be in season only from the first of October to the first of February. Heath cocks and hens are known whether new or stale in the same manner.

PARTRIDGES.—The cock bird is the largest of the two, has dark red feathers on both sides the breast and wings, and when young, the bills are of a dark colour, the legs yellowish; if they are fresh, the vent will be firm, but if stale, it will look green, and the skin will peel off when rubbed with the finger; if they are old, the bills will be of a light colour, and the legs blue; be sure as you get them, to draw the crop out, for if they have fed on green wheat they will soon stink.

WOODCOCKS & SNIPES.—When fat they are firm and thick, with a fat vein on each side the breast, the thigh and rump fat, and a close vent; a lean one will have a loose vent; if fresh killed, their feet will be limber, and the head and throat clean; if you open the bill and smell at the throat, it will soon tell whether it is fresh or stale.

PIGEONS.—When young they are not full feathered, their legs are of a dark colour, full and fat at the vent, and the feet limber; if the vent is loose and green, they are stale; when old, the legs are large and red. The Turnham Green pigeon is the finest and

Dr. Cullen and his sons.—The sons of the late Dr. Cullen of Edinburgh, were distinguished by extraordinary talents, accompanied however, by the most eccentric turns of mind and whimsical fancies. One of them was, when a small boy, so singularly arch, and at the same time high mettled, that the doctor could get little good of him. If the doctor corrected him he worried the doctor in return. One day he committed some very high offence, which the doctor resolved to punish.—A friend who was present interposed and said "Do, doctor, forgive him this time; by my faith he's a clever little fellow." "Yes, (re-echoed the boy, archly,) I am indeed a clever little fellow." "Aye, aye," said the doctor, "then I'll see if I cannot take away a little of that cleverness from you. So he ordered him up into a garret room to be confined on bread and water. By some chance, a cat, was locked up in the room with him. Tearing the sheets into strings he made a long cord of it, and having fastened the cat to the end of it, stood, with the window open, prepared for what might happen. At his usual hour, the doctor returned from visiting his patients, got out of his sedan chair, his hat, according to custom, under his arm, and his enormous white powdered wig, which would have covered a bee hive, exposed to view. Young Cullen immediately let down the cat, which, catching hold of the doctor's wig, held it fast. The doctor, greatly alarmed, looked up, and to his infinite chagrin and amazement, beheld wig and cat ascending into the air, and his son looking out and laughing. "Ah! you rascal," exclaimed the doctor, "is this your doing?" "Yes," roared out the arch youngster, while the passers by stopped with surprise, "yes, father, you threatened to deprive me of my cleverness, and I'll be hanged if I have not deprived you of all of yours."

It is Hard to Regain Reputation.

"You know you're a thief, Pat!" "I know I have been,

But my folly and wickedness fully I've seen;
Yet no one will trust me to work or to serve,
And if I stay here, I must steal or must starve.
If you a good word to the captain will spare,
That I may a trip to America take,
You shall find I'll be honest, for all the old strain,
Nor disgrace the green isle of the ocean again."
Kind Dennis consents, and poor Pat is receiv'd;
The word of strict Dennis was aptly believ'd.
Escap'd from his guilt and escap'd from his shame,
In a new world poor Pat hoped to earn a new name.
He was kind to the crew, to the captain obedient,
To please he was never without an expedient.
He work'd and he sung, morning-watch or midnight,
And Pat of the crew was the life and delight;
Even Dennis (at first not a little suspicious

(That Pat's new-found honesty might be factitious)
Felt easy respecting the pledge of his word,
And resolv'd that his friend was to honour restor'd.
When one day, while Patrick the ship's deck was washing,
And with bucket drew sea-water up for a lashing,
Relying too much on the hold of his foot,
And reaching and bending his whole body to't,
The ship gave a heel—Patrick's balance was lost,
And himself and his bucket to old Davy tost.
"Man overboard! out with a rope!" was the cry—
When Dennis on Pat, mid the waves, cast his eye.
"Catch the spalpeen," roar'd Dennis, "he's made me a liar!
And so devil roast him before his great fire!
To strive against bad education's in vain!
Och! the thief how he's got at his old tricks again!
If I saw not, I wouldn't believe how he took it!
Only look how the thief swims away with the bucket!"

Babylonian Marriages.

An auction of unmarried ladies used to take place in Babylon annually. "In every district," says the historian, "they assembled, on a certain day in every year, all the virgins of marriageable age." The most beautiful was first put up, and the man who bid the largest sum of money, gained possession of her charms. The second in personal appearance followed, and the bidders gratified themselves with handsome wives according to the depth of their purses. But, alas! it seems that there were in Babylon some ladies for which no money was likely to be offered; yet these also were disposed of—no provident were the Babylonians. "When all the beautiful virgins," says the historian, "were sold, the crier ordered the most deformed to stand up; and after he had openly demanded who would marry her with a small sum, she was at length adjudged to the man who would be satisfied with the least; and in this manner the money arising from the sale of the handsome, served for a portion to those who were either of disagreeable look, or had any other imperfection."

THE WONDERFUL CLOTH, OR THE BIRTH-RIGHT TEST.

From the French.

Three adventurers once presented themselves to a king; I am unable to say of what kingdom; he, however, was a king, and a rich one. They told him they were possessors of a secret for the manufacture of a most wonderful cloth: but that its fabrication required an extravagant outlay, and one far beyond their means; but such were its marvellous properties, that they doubted not but his majesty would furnish them with the facilities to establish a manufactory. They assured him that one born of base lineage could neither see nor touch it.

The king heard their relation with astonishment.

SALMON.—The scales of this fish when fresh and in high season, are very bright and clear, and the fins red, the flesh feels firm and of a fine red, small, with very little spawn in the inside; when out of season, it is full of red or yellow spots, the flesh pale and flabby, with the belly full of roe or melt, the head long, and the jaws turning at the ends, in that state it is not good. Salmon eats mellow when kept two or three days, than when it is quite fresh, for it boils curdly when just dead.

TROUT.—Fresh water trout is esteemed the best, they are red and yellow; the female is the best, which is known by the smallness of the head, and belly, deeper than the male; when fresh, they look of a fine bright colour, their eyes plump and bright, and the gills red. They come in season at the beginning of June and last till September.

HERRINGS.—When their heads are of a fine red, the scales shine bright, and the body stiff, they are new; if the head is black, and the scales dim, the body limber, they are stale. All herrings should be full of roe, for when shotten, they are good for nothing; fresh herrings are in season at Michaelmas, and when the mackerel first come in.

MACKAREL.—This is a very tender fish, and must be handled but very little; when fresh, it looks of a most beautiful shining green, the eyes bright and full, the body firm and stiff, and the gills red and full of roe; when stale, the body looks black, flabby and thin, the eyes shrunk and withered, and the gills black; the soft roe is esteemed the best; it is in season from April to July.

FLAUNDERS AND PLAICE.—These fish ought to be dressed alive, if dead and fresh, the bellies will look of a cream colour, the eyes plump, and the gills red, and hard to open, the body stiff and clean; when stale, the bellies look bluish, the eyes shrunk and withered, the gills dim, and the body limber and slimy; they are in season from January till March, and from June till September.

LOBSTERS.—This fish will live till all the substance is wasted; the best method is to buy them alive, and boil them yourself; but in the reflecting of not being legitimately born!

Behold our monarch, then, inwardly cursing his mother and his father; and ready, too, to commence a violent quarrel with his queen. However, courtier-like, he quickly recovers from his first surprise; he nobly sustains his dignity, and, to each observation of our adventurers, he responds with compliment and praises.

In time, so well did our gentry work, that there was not a single person at court but spoke of the wonderful cloth, and all deemed they established their birth-right, by asserting they had seen and touched it.

One day, our adventurers, emboldened by their success, went so far as to propose making an official robe for his majesty, to be worn on an approaching gala day. The king, who was tempted to discover whether there was not in his capital some companions in misfortune, promptly accepted their offer.

After having accurately measured the monarch, our trio returned home and appeared busily engaged in preparing the dress. On the appointed day, they re-appeared at the palace ostensibly with his majesty's garments. Shown to his apartments, they went through the operation of dressing him, landing, at intervals, the beauty of the stuff and the excellence of the fit.

His majesty was confounded, but still maintained his discretion. The operation concluded, he mounted his charger, and proudly paraded the city streets in the midst of a superb cavalcade.

No one was ignorant of the astonishing properties of the cloth; so every one must see it, and all therefore added to their cry of "Long live the king!" "what a splendid coat he has got!" This much enraged the king, who was more vain to believe himself the basest born personage in his kingdom.

Suddenly a little Moor, groom to his majesty, cried out, "Why, the king is naked!" This cry was echoed by his comrades. Insensibly the people too began to join in the clamour. The king finished by declaring his belief in its correctness; and finally, the grandees coincided in opinion with his majesty.

The emissaries of justice were dispatched to the domicile of the three adventurers, but they were not to be found—neither was gold, silver nor silk visible about their forsaken premises. The monarch, in his great joy to find himself equally well born with the members of his court, would not permit the pursuit of the runaways.

It is thus many errors are established in the world, and that many prejudices exist only by the fear we entertain of rendering ourselves singular by opposing them.

A COLLEGE JOKE.

There is something in the humdrum, monotonous sort of life led by collegians, that marvellously disposes them to wild frolics and mischievous pranks. Imagine, for a moment, a hundred or more boys, from town and country, just let loose from school, and transported from the immediate eye of a master to where they are comparatively their own masters—imagine, too, the impatience with which they submit to the restraints of college discipline, the reckless character of independence which they think it becomes them to put on, and the spirit of adventure so common among a promiscuous assemblage of boys, and you have some idea of the strange and fantastic forms in which that spirit breaks out and seeks to relieve the tedium of the study and lecture room.

"Why are boys sent to college?" was asked of an eccentric Greek professor. "Huh! huh!" growled the old man in a tone peculiar to himself—"huh! to learn Greek, to be sure—but they learn more of devilry, I fear!" Cynical as may seem this remark, there is too much truth in it. The head of a collegian—I use the term purposely instead of student—is filled with plans of mischief, oftener than with problems in mathematics. Little cares he for Greek roots or square roots, if his pockets are only replen-

M	Moon rises and sets.					be sure to weigh them; if they are heavy, and the tail strikes quick and strong, they are good; if weak and light, with a froth at the mouth, they are spent. When you choose a boiled one, put your finger and thumb on the body and pinch it; if it pinches tight, and the tail goes back with a strong spring, the lobster heavy, and a good bright red, it is good; if light and loose, and the shell dusky, it is stale or spent. The cock lobster is known by the narrowness of its tail, the two upper fins under the tail are hard and stiff; those of the hen are soft, and the tail broader; the meat of the cock is firmer than the hen, but the hen is preferred on account of the spawn. The same rule will hold good for crawfish, or a crab, only be sure, if the crab is boiled, to swell under the tail; if sweet, it is good.

OYSTERS.—In choosing an oyster, take the deepest shell, and if you hold it up to the light and it looks clear and close, bites keen to the knife, and opens as soon as the body is wounded, it is a good one.

CHEESE is esteemed the best when old and a fine blue mould, the coat of a fine smoothness, and the cheese feels firm, without any holes in it; if there are any holes, be sure to try it to the bottom, to find whether there are any mites in it, and observe that it is white and clear where there is no blue mould, and tastes mild; if it is of a dusky white, and tastes strong, it is not good. North-Wiltshire and double Gloucester cheese should be as yellow as gold, of a fine smooth coat, and the taste a little sharp; the way to make it mellow and fine, is to put it into a cellar, and cut a hole in the middle, and feed it every day with mountain wine for one month, then it will be mellow and fine. Thin Gloucester cheese is chosen by its closeness, and a colour inclining to yellow, the taste mild, and the coat clear and smooth; if it is full of eyes and pale, or very yellow, it is poor.

BUTTER.—When you buy fresh butter, be sure to put the knife in the middle and taste it; if it tastes mild and sweet, it is good; if you buy a cask of salt butter, have the cask unhooped ished with the root of all evil. But this is not always at his command. Fluctuating as are his funds at the beginning of term, long before its conclusion they begin to fail him. The innumerable expedients to which—to raise the wind—he is in consequence driven, evince more of ingenuity than what the world calls honesty. To bilk his tailor or the tavern keeper—or to bamboozle a coachee, is considered quite an honorable exploit.

I shall never forget an adventure of this latter description. Our college was a few miles from town, whither we usually repaired on a Saturday, the weekly holiday. Having passed the day here, I was returning late at night, when I was joined by Bob Tandom, a class-mate. Bob was a full-blooded hair-brained fellow—a species of the flash-and-frolic genius—with just that dash of adventure in his composition, that he would leap a toll-gate bar on horse-back, rather than pay the toll gatherer for opening it.

It so happened, on the present occasion, however that Bob, as well as myself, was on foot, and we trudged it off together, over the long bridge, which, in our way home, it was necessary to pass, singing a lusty song to the moon—it was past ten o'clock—and thrashing together our arms for the double purpose of keeping up our spirits and warmth. As we approached the end of the bridge, a countryman's wagon, the first vehicle we had met—was perceived coming towards us.

"I have it!" exclaimed Bob, "that old fellow shall carry us home!"

"But how will you square the expense?" I inquired.

"Oh! let me alone for that," answered Bob, at the same time elevating his voice and addressing the countryman—

"Hallo! friend in the curriculum yonder, will you give us a drive to college?"

"Not by a darned sight I guess!" replied he of the wagon, "I should bring my butter to a fine market, to turn round this time of night."

"Well! well!" said Bob, "I hope no offence—only meant to offer you a trifle of a job, by which you might transfer a dollar from my pocket to your own."

"A dollar! did you say?" responded the farmer—a dollar bill!—woa Dobbin—woa Dobbin—woa—a woa—a—a whole dollar bill!"

"Aye! a whole dollar bill, if you will set us down at college."

"Then I'm the man for your money!—jump in, jump in!"

No saying, the old farmer immediately turned about his horse, and in few moments was conveying us to the place of our destination—a good two miles or more from whence we started. The whole affair was the result of a thought, no sooner conceived than executed. Without the slightest suspicion that my companion meant to practice a joke upon the farmer, I had unwittingly made myself a party to the transaction. My own pockets were completely drained—the last dollar of my quarterly allowance had been staked and lost at the billiard room, before I left town. As for Bob's funds, a moment's reflection told me they were equally as low, or he never would have foisted it from town so cold a night. How we were to pay for our ride was a puzzle I in vain attempted to solve.

But it was now too late to retreat. Hardly was the case settled in my own mind, before we drove up in front of the college yard. Immediately Bob sprang from the wagon and calling to the farmer to follow, started and ran. Quick as a flash he gave the pursuit.

"Hallo, there, friend, hallo! where is my dollar?" he exclaimed at the top of his voice.

Bob heeded not the call, but made for the first college building, through the open hall of which the old farmer pursued him. We were now all three in for

D.	Boston.	New York.	Philadelph.	Wash. & Lex.	New Orleans	EGGS.—To choose eggs properly, you must put the thick end to your tongue; if it feels warm, it is new; if it is cold, it is stale; and according to the heat or cold, it is new or stale: the best method is to hold it up against the sun, or before a candle; if the yolk appears round, and the white clear, it is good; but if the yolk is broken, or sticks to the side, the white thick and muddy, it is stale. Another way to try, is to put them in cold water, the fresher it is the sooner it sinks to the bottom; if addled or rotten, it will swim on the surface of the water. The best method to keep eggs for use, is to bury them in salt; but the sooner they are used the better.

the chase—Bob leading, like a runaway fox; the farmer close at his heels with the keenness of a sportsman, fearing lest his prey should escape him; and myself following in the rear to witness the sport and be in at the death. Thus we threaded it through one building and then through another—now catching a glimpse of Bob by the lamp-light and now wholly losing sight of him in the dark. The last that was beheld of him, he was just entering the building, on the lower floor of which was his room. The door closed with a noise, and without knocking for admission, the old farmer bolted headlong in. There was no light in the room, except what was emitted from the remains of a fire, around which were seated some five or six collegians.

"Where is he! where is he!" roared the infuriated farmer, snatching a brand from the hearth, and holding it alternately to the terrified countenances of each of the inmates of the room.

"You're the rascal!" he exclaimed, seizing hold of the person that had just entered—"you're the rascal—pay me my money, or by the holy poker, I'll exterminate ye!"

The gripe of the farmer was powerful, but so was he on whom it was fastened. A desperate struggle ensued—not a word was uttered by either of the parties—the spectators seemed determined to take no part in the affray. I remained standing at the door, wholly at a loss to account for the strangeness of the scene. The farmer and his antagonist now fell—the farmer uppermost. I rushed forward—seized a lamp—and having lighted it, run to relieve my companion—when lo! instead of Bob Tandem, the man on the floor was—a college tutor!

A broad laugh burst from the crowd, which instantly dispersed—and I among the number. The consequences were fatal to Bob's chum, who was rusticated for keeping a disorderly room—while Bob escaped a severer penalty, to tell how he shot two birds with one stone. It seems some disturbance had been made by the party in his room, and just as he arrived there, the tutor was entering to quell it. Bob continued his flight through the hall, and the official gentleman was made to represent him. The old farmer was frightened enough when he found out his mistake, but on making an explanation, was suffered to depart—which he did, muttering to himself—as Bob tells the story—"them are college boys are full of the old serpent!"

Making an Odd Fellow.—One evening last week, a neighbouring farmer arrived in Sheffield, as he said, to be made an Odd Fellow! He had heard that odd fellowship was a good thing, and he liked good things. While he was waiting for the aforesaid purpose, in an anti-room of a celebrated hotel, not a hundred miles from the town hall, a gentleman, knowing his object, inquired how he felt—"Oh," says the farmer, "weel enough." "It's very well you do," says the other, "as you will be better able to stand the rubbing of a red-hot flat-sided poker, on your left hip, which is now preparing." "Aye, what do they do that for?" "To prevent you running away; and so as they may know their members." He was sure they should not wear him, and never a man in England should do it! The time, however, approached for the farmer to undergo the initiative operation of being made an Odd Fellow, which ceremony the party commenced by tying a handkerchief over his eyes. This immediately recalled to the farmer's mind the "flat-sided" poker, the horrors of which brought on an alarming fit of trembling, during which he exclaimed they should not blurt him, and spreading his long arms, he instantly laid half a dozen of the operators on their backs. Having thus extricated himself, the farmer scampered down stairs, ordered his horse immediately, nor did he stop an instant till he arrived at home, more like Burns's "Tam o'Shanter," than a dauntless candidate for the mystical wash; having, as he said, when able to speak, got enough of odd fellowship.

MATRIMONIAL ANECDOTE.

The Rev. Mr. O——, a respectable clergyman in the interior of the state, relates the following anecdote. A couple came to him to be married; and after the knot was tied, the bridegroom addressed him with—

“How much do you ax Mister?”

“Why,” replied the clergyman, “I generally take whatever is offered me. Sometimes more, sometimes less. I leave it to the bridegroom.”

“Yes—but how much do you ax, I say!” repeated the happy man.

“I have just said, returned the clergyman, that I left it to the decision of the bridegroom. Some give me ten dollars; some five; some, three; some, two; some, one; and some, only a quarter of a one.”

“A quarter; ha?” said the bridegroom; “wal, that’s as reasonable as a body could ax. Let me see if I’ve got the money.” He took out his pocket book, there was no money there; he fumbled in all his pockets, but not a six-pence could he find. “Dang it,” said he, “I thought I had some money with me, but I recollect now, ’twas in my other trowsers pocket. Hetty have you got sich a thing as two shillings about ye?”

“Me!” said the bride, with a mixture of shame and indignation—“I’m astonished at ye, to come here to be married without a cent of money to pay for it! if I’d known it afore, I would’nt a come a step with ye; you might have gone alone to be married for all me.”

“Yes, but consider, Hetty,” said the bridegroom, in a soothing tone, “we’re married now, and it can’t be helped—if you’ve got sich a thing as a couple of shillings—”

“Here, take ’em,” interrupted the angry bride, who during this speech had been searching in her work-bag; “and don’t you,” said she, with a significant motion of her finger—“don’t you never serve me another sich a trick.”

EVENNESS OF TEMPER.

Madama Necker relates the following anecdote of M. Abauret, a philosopher of Geneva. It was said of him that he had never been out of temper; some persons, by means of his female servant, were determined to put him to this proof. The woman in question stated that she had been his servant for thirty years, and she protested that, during that time, she had never seen him in a passion. They promised her a sum of money if she would endeavor to make him angry. She consented; and, knowing that he was particularly fond of having his bed well made, she, on the day appointed, neglected to make it. M. Abauret observed it, and the next morning made the observation to her: she answered that she had forgotten it; she said nothing more, but on the same evening she again neglected to make the bed. The same observation was made on the morrow by the philosopher, and she again made some excuse, in a cooler manner than before. On the third day, he said to her, “You have not yet made my bed; you have apparently come to some resolution on the subject, as you probably found that it fatigued you. But after all, it is of no great consequence, as I begin to accustom myself to it as it is.” She threw herself at his feet, and avowed all to him.

A commercial traveller lately left an article of his wardrobe at an inn, and wrote to the chambermaid to forward it to him by the coach. He received the following answer.—

I hope, dear sir, you’ll not feel hurt;
I’ll frankly tell you all about it;
I’ve made a shift of your old shirt,
And you must make a shift without it.

To find the time of Sun rising or setting for any place in the United States from the annexed Table: Take the latitude of the place on the top, and the sun's declination on the side, under the former and opposite the latter, will give the time of sun setting or rising.

Observe that this Table is calculated for the declination of the sun when North, and that when the declination is South, the time of sun rising exhibited in the Table will be time of sun setting;—also, the time of sun setting will be time of sun rising.

EXAMPLE I.

Required the time of sun rising and setting at Philadelphia, on 20th May.

In the Almanac for the month of May, opposite 20, the day of the month, and in the column under sun dec. the sun's declination, is 20 1 N. In the annexed Table opposite 20 thus found, and under 40, the latitude of Philadelphia, the numbers 7 11 5 are given; that is 7h. 11m. for sun setting, as marked on the top, and 11 minutes before 5 for sun rising.

EXAMPLE II.

Required the time of sun rising and setting at Philadelphia on the 25th of February.

In the Almanac for the month of February, opposite 25th, the day of the month, and in the column under (sun dec.) the declination of the sun, is 9 S. In the annexed Table, opposite 9 thus found, and under 40, the numbers 6 30 6 are given, and agreeable to the directions on the top of the Table, when the declination is North, 6h. 31m. shows the sun setting, and 31 minutes before six for sun rising;—but in this instance, as the sun's declination is south, the sun rising must be taken for the sun setting, and the sun setting for the sun rising, as shown in the observation above;—therefore, on the 25th February, at Philadelphia, the sun sets at 31 minutes before 6, and rises 6h. 31m.

Department of State.

FOREIGN MINISTERS, CONSULS, &c. IN THE UNITED STATES.

By the Act of 30th April, 1790, it is provided that if any writ or process shall at any time be sued forth or prosecuted by any person or persons, in any of the courts of the United States, or in any courts of a particular State, or by any judge or justice therein, respectively, whereby the person of any ambassador or other public minister of any foreign prince or state, authorised and received as such by the President of the United States, or any domestic or domestic servant, of any such ambassador or other public minister, may be arrested or imprisoned, or his or their goods and chattels be distrained, seized or attached, such writ or process shall be deemed and adjudged as utterly null and void, to all intents, constructions, and purposes, whatsoever.

In case any person or persons shall sue forth or prosecute any such writ or process, such person or persons, and all attorneys or solicitors prosecuting or soliciting in such case, and all officers executing any such writ or process, being thereof convicted, shall be deemed violaters of the laws of nations and disturbers of the public repose, and imprisoned not exceeding three years, and fined at the discretion of the court. But no citizen or inhabitant of the United States, who shall have contracted debts prior to his entering into the service of any ambassador or other public minister, which debt shall be still due and unpaid, shall have, take, or receive, any benefit of this act; nor shall any person be proceeded against by virtue of this act, for having arrested or sued any other domestic servant of any ambassador or other public minister, unless the name of such servant be first registered in the office of the Secretary of State, and by such secretary transmitted to the Marshal of the District of Columbia, who shall, upon receipt thereof, affix the same in some public place in his office, whereto all persons may resort and take copies without fee or reward.

If any person shall violate any safe conduct or passport duly obtained, and issued under the authority of the United States, or shall assault, strike, wound imprison, or in any manner infract the law of nations, by offering violence to the person of an ambassador or other public minister, such person so offending, on conviction, shall be imprisoned not exceeding three years, and fined at the discretion of the court.

SWAIM'S PANACEA.

Much has been said about the composition of this medicine, and some chemists have gone so far as to declare, that the result of their analytical labours led them positively to conclude that it contained, as a principal ingredient, some metallic preparation.

This assertion has been denied and refuted by evidence of the highest and most unquestionable character: in addition to what has already been presented to the public on this subject, we subjoin the following letter from the Hon. George W. Erving, our former Minister to Spain and Denmark, &c. &c.

Extract of a Letter, dated Paris, May 5th, 1834, from George W. Erving, of Massachusetts, (late minister of the United States in Spain and Denmark) to a friend in Philadelphia.

My dear —,

You may recollect that when, just previous to my last departure from Philadelphia, I explained to you the merits of "Swaim's Panacea," and attributed its efficacy principally to sarsaparilla, which I thought to be its basis; I at the same time mentioned that a celebrated chemist, of your city, had informed me some years ago, that he had discovered mercury, and latterly that he had found arsenic in this famous medicine.—I was not, however, shocked by this information; I had only to transfer my gratitude from sarsaparilla to those more powerful drugs, acknowledging that they had completely cured the herpetic affection which had tormented me, more or less, for fourteen years; and which had resisted all the means, mild and violent, external and internal, which, under the recommendation of the first physicians in this country, and of some of our own, I had experimented during that period. Though three years had passed since the cure of the disorder had been effected, and I had not observed the least symptom of its disposition to return, and consequently was free from all inquietudes; yet to "make security doubly sure," I thought it prudent to bring a few bottles of the Panacea with me on my last departure from home (now twelve months). I rejoice to say, that I have not had, or am I in the least apprehensive that I shall have occasion to use it; but I found an old acquaintance here, (the Count de C——,) to whom it may be useful; he has much more need of it than I ever had, though as he is nearly eighty years of age I do not feel very confident of its success in his case. Before giving it to him, however, good faith and duty to this friend seemed to require that I should have a strict analysis made of the medicine by the first chemists here; for though I have not the least objection to mercury or arsenic, or hellebore, or prussic acid, I could not presume that he had none; nor could I hope to convert him (much less his physicians, if he should consult them) to my opinion in favour of the salutary, as well as vigorous, action of those drugs in all maladies, to which they apply, and are used with discretion; for the French procedure in medicine, relying on the healing power of nature, is as mild and merely palliative as may be, in all cases which are not of a very alarming character. By favour then of Dr. L., a principal physician in the hospital of St. Louis, (an hospital appropriated to those afflicted by the disorder referred to) and one of those doctors whose prescriptions I followed some years ago, I obtained the analysis of which I herewith enclose a copy: it is perfectly satisfactory to my friend C., since it not only shows, contrary to the opinion of Dr. Hare, which it cites, that there is not any mercury in the Panacea, but declares that NO MINERAL SUBSTANCE WHATEVER CAN BE FOUND IN ITS COMPOSITION.

This analysis may be useful to Mr. Swaim, and I pray you to have the goodness to transmit it to him through whatever channel, or in such form as to you shall seem most proper.

With very affectionate and respectful sentiments, always

Your most obliged and obedient servant, (Signed) GEORGE W. ERVING.

Chemical Examination of Swaim's Panacea, in the Hospital of St. Louis, Paris.

A deep brown coloured liquid, of the consistence of a clear syrup; possessing an alcoholic and aromatic odour, with a sugary taste, slightly tartish.

This medicine belongs to that class which is now known by the title of "Concentrated Essence, or Fluid Extract, or Portable Ptisan of Sarsaparilla." But it is impossible to say what the vegetable substances are of which it is composed.

From a note inserted in the Journal of Pharmacy, (vol. 18, page 170,) it would seem that Swaim's Panacea owes its peculiar odour at least to the volatile oil of "Gualtheria procumbens," a little shrub (analogous to the sweet broom) which grows abundantly in South America. In the note just cited, it is said that

R. Hare, professor of chemistry, in the University of Pennsylvania, North America, examined Swaim's Panacea, in 1827, and that he found mercury in it. I applied myself particularly to the detection of that metal. The taste of the medicine, and the preliminary essay with the chemical tests, gave no indication, moreover of its containing any metallic substance whatever. It is admitted that the salts of mercury are rendered insoluble, and even often reduced to a metallic state, by medicinal preparations of an organic nature, to which they are often added; if then there was in fact any mercury in Swaim's Panacea, its presence was to be sought after in the deposit or dregs of the Panacea.

Accordingly the Panacea having been decanted with care, the bottle was rinsed with distilled water, and in that way I detached from it an abundant whitish deposit, which having been well washed, was then treated with nitric acid, and evaporated to dryness. That residuum was then treated with water, which only dissolved a little sulphate of lime, and a minute portion of phosphate of lime; but there was no trace of any metallic substance; and, above all, no indication of any mercurial salt. The greatest part of the residue was insoluble in water, and it was treated with the muriatic acid, which dissolved it almost entirely, with the exception of a sandy portion. This last solution was yellow, and its residuum was yellow, deliquescent in the air, and containing iron and phosphate of lime. That portion of it which was insoluble in water, was entirely white; and being redissolved in muriatic acid, coloured it deep yellow. That white residuum was composed of a double phosphate of lime and of iron, which substances are almost always met with in the analysis of animal substances. Their presence therefore would only seem to indicate that some animal matter enters into the preparation of Swaim's Panacea.

Extract of a Letter from Major General Pearson, of the British Army, to William Swaim.

My Dear Sir,

You must attribute solely to the effects of indisposition, occasioned by an attack of erysipelas, my not having sooner complied with your wishes of sending you an account of my general health, which I am assured you will be gratified to learn is improving in every respect, even faster than my most sanguine friends could have anticipated. My constitution received such a shock from severe wounds and exposure to different climates, most probably rendered me more susceptible to suffering, as in the case of my accident from my horse falling with me and crushing my leg, which had previously been injured by two severe gun-shot wounds, and I have no hesitation in saying that to the effects of your Panacea, in which I have every confidence, I may attribute my speedy restoration to health. There are several people at Cheltenham anxiously inquiring after you, &c.

I cannot close this short letter without assuring you that few more truly appreciate the invaluable qualities of your inestimable Panacea than myself.

I remain, my dear Sir, truly yours,

T. PEARSON.

To Mr. Wm. Swaim, Proprietor of Swaim's Panacea, Moreley's Hotel, Trafalgar Square, London.

Copy of a Letter from William L. Hirst, Esq. Attorney at Law, No. 63 South Seventh street, Philadelphia.

Dear Sir,

Your "Panacea" has accomplished a cure, so remarkable, that I feel bound to certify it. My brother Lucas, about three years since, was afflicted with a severe attack of scrofula. His head was completely covered with ulcers, so thick and close that they grew one over the other; and his face and body were covered also with numerous sores: he was under the most judicious medical treatment for nine months, without the least amendment, growing worse daily, and every variety of remedy was used, according to the regular practice of medicine. It was at a time when he was looked upon as incurable that I resolved to procure your "Panacea" for him. The effect was quite wonderful. Without any change of his customary diet, three bottles, and about one half of the fourth, restored him to perfect health. It is now two years since he was cured; he remains well, and is as hearty and robust as any boy of his age in this city.

Yours respectfully,

W. L. HIRST.
